MR. ELLIOT

TO HIS CONSTITUENTS.

LETTER VIII.

The constitutionof the United States is the most illustrious monument of human wisdom that has existed in any age or nation. It combines energy with liberty; the great desideratum of the most celebrated statesmen of ancient & modern times. The provision of the constitution which renders attainable such amendments as time and experience may require, is one of its most estimable characteristics. But an instrument so sacred should be touched with a gentle hand. It is time for every theorist, and few have been more ardent theorists than myself, to sacrifice the visions of his imagination upon the altar of national union.

Many of the greatest and best men in Virginia were opposed to the adoption of the constitution. Could this circumstance be considered as a reproach, it would not be applicable to Virginia alone; it was the case in a large majority of the states. Opposition generally speaking proceeded from the best of motives, from an attatchment to liberty, and from a fear that, were the constitution adopted, "liberty would be but a name to adorn the short historic page of the halcyon days of America." But there were peculiar features in the constitution which rendered it peculiarly obnoxious to Virginia.

The states were to be equally represented in the senate, an important branch of the government, a two edged sword placed in avenue to the sovereignties of the individual states, and checking equally the president and representatives of the people,—should they attempt to exceed their constitutional limits. Many of the greatest men of Virginia thought it radically wrong that the small state of Rhode Island should have an equal voice in the senate with the largest state; and as that idea still prevails in Virginia, and that state possesses a great and increasing influence over the small states, it is reasonable to conclude that those who think the constitution wrong will endeavor to make it right, as soon as they obtain the power. Nothing else can be expected so long as "man is man." Although jealousy has been considered by many as a republican virtue of the first order, we ought not however to indulge a groundless jealousy; nor ought we to accuse any portion of the union of a design to change the constitution, without unquestionable evidence. Upon this subject my mind has been perfectly convinced, and I always expressed with true republican freedom, opinions, of the correctness of which, I feel a perfect conviction.

The sentiments of the celebrated Patrick Henry, of Edmund Randolph, of Mason, and many other distinguished Virginians respecting the constitution, are on record, and the record cannot be obliterated.—The equality of suffrage in the senate was a prominent objection. The mind even of the great Washington harbored a strong prepossession in favor of the large states. I have been told by a venerable member of the convention which formed the constitution, that Washington was decidedly of opinion that the small states took too high ground, and that nothing but the indispensible necessity of forming a constitution previously to the dissolution of the convention induced him to support what he considered as too great a concession on the part of the large states. Various publications of a recent date, under the signature of the venerable patriot, Edmund Pendleton, inculcated, the propriety of several important alterations of the constitution; and there is every reason to believe that these publications were direct indications of the general sentiment in Virginia. Mr. Eppes, a member of congress from that state, in the address to his constituents, in consequence of which he obained his election, announced his determination to advocate several very important alterations of the constitution, one of which should have for its object the reduction of the time for which the senators are elected, and also, if my recollection be correct, to render them liable to be recalled by the state legislatures. Mr. Breckenridge, a native Virginian, and a distinguished member of the senate, declared in the late debate upon the amendment that nothing could be more aristocratic, in his opinion, than the election of the senators for 6 years—but that he wished not to connect an alteration of the constitution in that respect, with the amendment then under consideration. Another able member of the senate declared in my presense, that nothing could be clearer than that it is totally wrong to have a senate at all in a republican government. Many Republicans of other states as well as Virginia, have declared to me that very important amendments of the constitution must and will take place in a few years. One member from Virginia in the presence of several members of both political parties told me, that the time for which the senators are elected must be reduced to two years; that this alteration would soon be agitated; that it would be a test by which to try the republicans; and that no member could be considered as a true republican who should oppose it. I have ascertained that a very great proportion of republicans in congress are of opinion that the constitution is too aristocratic, that the small states had too much weight, that the judiciary is by far too independent, and that the following alterations of the constitution must be made as soon as the public mind can be prepared for them.

1. To reduce the time for which the Senators are elected to two years. This would soon render the senators from the small states the mere tools of the large states, and would lead to the total destruction of the senate.

2. To carry the election of President to the people at large This would destroy all the remaining weight of the small states, as states, in the election of President. The weight of Vermont relative to Pennsylvania, in that election, is now in the ratio of 6 to 20; it would then be only 4 to 18.

3. That the judges shall be appointed for a few years only. Comment is here unnecessary.

Possibly there may be no just grounds for any alarm upon the subject, but altho' I may too be credulous I am certainly sincere in my fear. Should no attempts be made to alter the constitution, I shall be willing to be considered, not only a weak alarmist, but a visionary politician.

Much is said of a plot to divide the union. It is imputed chiefly to the federalists, but attempts have not been wanting to implicate the northern republicans. I have expressed myself in favor of a union of the people in the northern states in general sentiment, for the purpose of securing to us our due weight in the councils of the nation, and for preserving instead of destroying the constitution; but I wish that union to take place upon republican principles and no other; upon the genuine principles of the constitution alone.

Were the northern states as well united as the southern, we should not be so unreasonable as to desire more than our degree of political weight, and that the southern states would be willing to allow us, for they must dread a dissolution of the union equally with ourselves. No person in the United States can more ardently desire the preservation of the union than myself. I shall always be prepared to spill the last drop of my blood in its support. I believe the only way to preserve the union is to preserve the Constitution. May both be preserved! May the constitution and the union be perpetual.

These are the sentiments of a Vermont republican, who without aspiring to preeminence, will never think himself inferior to the republicans of Virginia. My little farm of fourteen acres, is cultivated by the labour of my own hands; my brother of the south possesses hundreds of slaves, scattered over thousands of acres. Speculatively the Virginian may be a better republican than I am; but his republicanism is certainly not quite so practical as mine.

JAMES ELLIOT.

P. S. Since writing the above letter, some of the alterations of the constitution which I have ventured to predict, have been moved in congress by Mr. Randolph of Virginia, and Mr. Nicholson of Maryland, and are made the order of the day for the first day of next session. I am also possessed of evidence to prove that some of Mr. Randolph's most able supporters in congress have boldly avowed their hostility to the constitution in all its essential parts.

It is possible that my alarm on this subject may be a vain one. I hope that it is so. But in the alternate triumphs of the two great parties in our country, I have seen enough to convince me that party spirit is capable of every species of delusion and violence, in the support of favorite measures; and I sincerely believe that we are in danger of witnessing a political tempest, fraught with ruin to the rights of the small states. It is known to every member of congress from the northern states, that the majority of Virginia statesmen entertain opinions, in reference not only to constitutional principles, but to the great interests of commerce which are at variance with the sentiments of men of all parties in this quarter of the union. In these opinions our Virginia brethren are honest. They have sketched for themselves the system which they think would best promote the prosperity and glory of the union, and they will support that system with energy. Our own declaimers who resort to the farewell address of the great Washington, for denunciations against those who "misrepresent the opinions and aims of other districts," act unjustly in censuring those who represent correctly the sentiments and views of politicians in other quarters. I have made this correct representation under the strongest impressions of duty. And jealous as I am of Virginia, I will support as an individual, a Virginian candidate for the office of president, so long as that state shall present to our view the man qualified above all others for that station. As the present president will probably decline a third election, I am induced to believe that Mr. Madison and Mr. Randolph will be candidates for the next presidency. In that event the people of the northern and middle states will consult their own interests and that of the union, by supporting Mr. Madison. Attached to the constitution from its infancy, his administration would be guided by its principles. And it is to be hoped the chariot of the sun will never be committed to the guidance of a second PHAETON. In other words it is to be hoped that genius and eloquence combined with habits of cool reflection and profound investigation, will ever be considered as forming superior pretensions to the presidency, than genius and eloquence alone.

By WILLIAM LOVELL,

Who begs leave to inform the Ladies, Gentlemen, and the Public in general, in this town, that on Wednesday, the first of May, he will commence baking; where they may be supplied with BREAD of the first quality and found baked—on such terms never before offered in this place—as follows:

THE eighteen penny loaf for 20 cents, nine penny loaf for 10 cents, four pence half penny loaf for 5 cents; and, for the convenience of those whose family or circumstances will not admit of LARGE BREAD, he will make the three penny loaf two ounces heavier than the weight fixed by the Clerk of the Market, as directed by the Corporation; so that the labouring man will be served on as good terms as the merchant. The BEST SUPERFINE FLOUR for housekeeping at seven cents per pound, or fifteen pounds for a dollar. Those Ladies and Gentlemen who wish to be regularly supplied at their own houses, will be obliging enough to send a line as above, which will be attended to, Grocers allowance to sellers of Bread. To prevent any misunderstanding the above terms are CASH, unless where stated credits are agreed on, and those are expected to be regularly paid—the profits being small.

N. B. To Taverns, Boarding-houses, and large families, there will be an additional savings of ten per cent. in buying LARGE LOAVES in preference to SMALL.

We have seen a letter from a gentleman who lately arrived in this country from the city of Santo Domingo to his friend in New-York, which mentions that general Ferrand has issued a proclamation declaring that the captains and crews of all vessels who should thereafter be found trading with the revolted negroes, or bound to or coming from any ports in their possession should suffer death; and that orders have been given for carrying the object of the proclamation into effect with all possible rigor. No. I. Letter, to commercial agents residing in the United States of North America.

Although from official reports respecting the contagious disease which raged last Autumn in Malaga, occasioning so much devastation, the Royal College has likewise been informed that the said contagion had ceased in the month of December next following, so as to leave no apprehension of its spreading any further, and that consequentially all measures of precaution hitherto enforced, had been discontinued in Spain, since the month of March last; yet, as this epidemic, which in all probability was a species of Yellow Fever, has already, within a few years, repeatedly renewed its symptoms in the said kingdom; and whereas, on account of its mercantile relations with America, it is ever to be feared that the contagion may again be communicated, especially because the measures of guarding against it may be less generally known, or not strictly enforced: Now, therefore, the Royal College thinks fit hereby to apprize you of the necessity of taking particular notice that upon every occasion of Swedish vessels bound to or from your district, or foreign vessels being [illegible] Swerlen, a correct knowledge [illegible] obtained respecting the state of [illegible] soundness of the crew, and [illegible] any ground for appre[illegible] them to certify the same on the pass, and immediately to report the same to the Royal College, &c. &c.

Stockholm, July 16th, 1804.

No. II. His majesty, for the purpose of securing the kingdom against the raging epidemic which has again broke out in Malaga, has, by royal letter of the 16th instant, been pleased graciously to ordain, that all vessels from the said city or other suspected places, arriving into any port of the kingdom situated out of the Sound or Baltic sea, shall be ordered for the island of Kanso, situated one Swedish mile from the fortress of Elfsborg, for the purpose of undergoing quarantine, a provisional establishment of this kind being immediately to take place there by his majesty's command: And moreover his majesty, desirous of enforcing such regulations as have been adopted in Denmark, has been pleased to ordain that no vessel, coming from Malaga (or other suspected places) and bound for any Swedish port or place in the Baltic, shall be allowed to pass the Sound, unless it can prove, by a bill of health in due form, granted by the commissioners (or board) of health established at Christiansand in Norway, that it has undergone the quarantine in said place, or been found by the said commissioners to be free of all suspected contagious disease; otherwise such vessel or vessels will be ordered back to Christiansand. The Royal College hereby apprizes you of this royal order, enjoining you to communicate the same not only to all masters of Swedish vessels which may arrive within your district, but also to all foreign vessels arriving from Malaga, or other suspected places, which may be bound for this kingdom.—Given at Stockholm, October 23d, 1804.

No. III. Since erecting and establishing a quarantine ground on the island of Kanso, on the coast of Gottenburg, his majesty has graciously been pleased to command by letter of the 27th of November, last past, addressed to the Royal College of Trade and Commerce, That during the continuance of such quarantine, the said port shall be shut against all vessels arriving from places free from contagion; of which the commercial agents are enjoined to communicate information in foreign newspapers; at the same time, his majesty has judged it to be necessary, that all masters of vessels from Sweden and its dependencies, who may be in foreign ports, shall receive order through the commercial agents abroad, to provide themselves with a black flag, and hoist the same on approaching the Swedish coast whenever they may be coming from infected or suspected places: this flag being intended as a warning to pilots and others concerned, &c. &c.

Stockholm, 10th Dec. 1804.

No. IV. Whereas his Majesty has graciously ordained, under date the 21st instant, That it shall hence forward be the duty of all Swedish commercial agents and commissaries residing abroad, whenever a contagious disease breaks out in or near their places of residence, immediately to report the same, not only to the Royal College of Trade and Commerce, but also direct to the Quarantine Commissioners, (or Board of Health,) at Gottenburg, and moreover, to transmit a list of such vessels as may then lie in port and be loading for Sweden and ports in the Baltic: Now, therefore, the Royal College does hereby make known to you his Majesty's gracious command for your faithful observance, &c. &c.

Stockholm, December 27, 1804.

Poor Duane.—The time is at hand when this fellow must sink to his proper level in society.

"When every feather sticks on its own wing,
"This creature will be left a naked gull."

What made Duane a friend of the people, an upholder of Jefferson, and so violent, and so enraged in his favor, that he labored and wrote, as if the devil drove him (as he probably did) to secure the election of Mr. Jefferson? Was it because he expected the people at large would be benefited, or that he would make his fortune?

Shortly after the present administration came into office, we are informed that the different secretaries gave Duane in advance for stationary, &c. between twenty-five and thirty thousand dollars. His profits, we presume, were at least 10,000 dollars. But he * the government so abominably, that the different secretaries have generally since applied to regular stationers. On some articles of stationary he is said to have made two or three hundred per cent. They mention his buying knives at Patterson's store for 6 dollars a dozen, and charging the government 24 dollars a dozen: Quills about cent. per cent. advance. After contracting for several thousand reams of paper, of a certain quality, and receiving the price for English paper, he went and purchased American paper in Delaware, and made a spec of one dollar or more for a ream. In short, we believe that he has received from government for printing and stationary between sixty and eighty thousand dollars, the regular profits of which have been great, & the  profits of which much greater; yet we are told that the fellow is scarcely worth sixpence after all, which proves that what is gotten over the devil's back is not always saved.

Well—Last session, Mr. Jackson a member of the house of representatives from this state, brought forward a resolution to give the printing business and the supply of stationary to the lowest bidder who gave the best security. The particular friends of Mr. Dunn, such as Mr. Smiley, Mr. Randolph, and Doctor Leib opposed this resolution, not from motives of economy, not from a wish to save the peoples money, but a patriotic, and highly commendable desire to reward Mr. Patriot Dunn, for his great services in the cause of genuine republicanism. The opposition was fruitless; about 70 to 20 in favor of Mr. Jackson's resolution. The contracting was left with Beckley, the clerk of the house; and last week the contract was closed with Mr. Andrew Way of Washington to do all the printing, and with Mr. Edgar Patterson of Georgetown to supply all the stationary: So that poor Duane is fast becoming featherless. The secretaries refusing to take the stationary of him was taking out his tail feathers; this contract with Way and Patterson, quite lops one wing; the Freeman's Journal and other democratic papers are continually plucking his pin feathers, ?——Nothing remains but the printing for the senate, and this he will loose when the last feathers of the remaining wing will be off, and the naked buzzard will fall to the ground.

IMPORTANT!!

THE DROPSY CURED.

A person who was prodigiously swelled with this disorder, put a large cup full of bohea tea into a teapot, steeped it, drank the liquor by degrees, and ate all the tea leaves, in the course of the forenoon. The same experiment was repeated in the afternoon, and for the two succeeding days.—On the second day the water began to decrease by natural evacuations, and on the third day it was totally dissipated.

PROCLAMATION.

By brigadier general William Carlyon Hughes, commanding his majesty's land forces in the colony of Surrinam, and lieut. governor of the same, &c. &c.

Whereas the time limited in the proclamation of his excellency major general sir Charles Green, dated the 7th of December last for regulating the trade to and from this colony in neutral vessels, will expire on the 29th of this present month of April, and his majesty's further pleasure having been since signified upon that head, whereby I am instructed not to open the ports of the settlement over which I preside for the admission of articles from the American states which are not allowed by law, except in cases of real and very great necessity.

And whereas it appearing that there does at present exist a real and very great necessity for the admission, during a limited period, of the articles herein after enumerated; I do by virtue of the power and authority in me vested, publish this my proclamation hereby declaring that it shall and may be lawful from and after the 29th day of the present month April, and during the term of four months, to import into this settlement in American or other neutral bottoms belonging to the subjects of any power in amity with His Majesty, Tobacco, Pitch, Tar, Turpentine, Staves, Heading, Boards, Timber, Shingles, and Lumber, of any sort, Mules, Cattle, Sheep, Hogs, Poultry, and live stock of any sort, Bread, Biscuit, Flour, Peas, Beans, Potatoes, Wheat, Rice, Oats, Barley and Grain of any sort, from the American dominions of such Neutral Power aforesaid, and it is hereby declared that it shall and may be lawful to permit the exportation of Rum and Molasses in such American or other neutral vessels to the full value of their imported cargoes, and that a duty of four per cent upon exports, as well upon the commodities herein before specified as upon such as shall hereafter be found necessary to allow to be imported or exported in neutral bottoms upon emergency or otherwise, shall be levied and collected according to the regulations now existing on that head. Furthermore that if any other articles than those before enumerated and specified are attempted to be introduced from the United States of America in American or other neutral bottoms, measures will be taken for the forfeiture of the ship or vessel importing the same, and of the Goods so imported in contravention of the laws of navigation.

Done at Paramaribo in the Colony of Surrinam this 14th day of April 1805, and in the 45th year of his majesty's reign.

IN COMMON COUNCIL.

7th June, 1805.

Ordered, That the street commissioners do examine the trunk on Royal-street, which conveys the water across Duke-street, and repair the same if it should be found necessary.

An act respecting the public pumps was once read and ordered to lie over for further consideration.

Ordered, That Marsteller and Young be permitted, at the expence of themselves and others interested, to fill up a path 20 feet wide across Queen street, in Union street, between the wharves of Richard Conway and William Wilson, provided they shall construct a proper trunk for the free passage of water, so as to prevent the stagnation of water and other nuisances.

Ordered, That the superintendant of police do proceed to remove the nuisance stated by him to exist in the cellar of Betty Mason.

Resolved, That Messrs. Deneale and Swift be appointed a committee to contract with Colonel Gilpin for an accurate map and survey of the several additions made to the town of Alexandria since the one recorded by him in the corporation books, and report to council the probable expence of the same.

A bill to amend an act of the mayor and commonalty of the town of Alexandria, entitled "An act for establishing, perpetuating and regulating the streets, and to prevent injuries to docks" was brought in, and the same having been read three times, and the ayes and nays being required on the final passage thereof, are as follow, viz.

Ayes—Messrs. Deneale, Jones, Lee, Lumsdon, M'Kinney, Swift, Sexsmith and Young.

Nays—Messrs. Cohagan, Hoffman, Hewes, Robinson and Smith.

Whereupon the said bill was, by the vote of the president, passed. And it is ordered, that the same be laid before the mayor for his signature.

A supplement to an act entitled "an act for the more effectual execution of the penal laws of the corporation of Alexandria by the appointment of a police constable," was brought in, and having been read three times was passed and ordered to be laid before the mayor for his signature.

For SALE and to RENT.

I wish to sell 900 acres of Land, on Sugar Land Run; being a moiety of 1800 acres, lying on the edge of Loudoun, and in Fairfax county, about 20 miles from Alexandria, 19 from George-Town, and about a mile and one quarter from the river—lies level—It has an abundance of fine timber on it equal to any in the county, and no tract of land can be more copiously supplied with innumerable springs of the finest water; there is a part of it laid down in fine clover paddocks, with a good orchard and several buildings fit for tenants. This land was deeded to me, several years ago, by Ferdinand Fairfax, Esquire—the title indisputable, as may be seen by the title papers in my possession. Terms may be known and the land shewed to any person wishing to purchase, by the subscriber.

I wish to Rent, for 5 or 6 years,

An ISLAND in the Potomac,

About fifteen miles from George-town,

Containing 216 acres; most of which is cleared: I am told, by those who have been in Kentucky, that it is equal to any land in that state, producing from 10 to 12 barrels of corn per acre in a tolerable season. A great bargain may be had in the purchase of the first mentioned tract, and in the latter on rent, provided application be soon made. Possession may be had at Christmas, (when the present crop will be finished) with liberty of sowing wheat this fall. It is supposed, by judges, there is a good MILL-SEAT, with a stream of water on the 900 acre tract. Any person desirous of purchasing will view it and judge for themselves.
